THURSDAY AFTERNOON, DEC. 9.

GEN. WILLIAM MCKEE DUNN, the new judge advocate general, was the legal adviser of Generals Pope and Meade during their reign in Atlanta. Many of our people remember him and also some of the acts that he advised.

THE melon trade of Richmond county reached last summer the enormous aggregate of 256,450 melons. The Central railroad carried away 90,850, over one-third of which were grown on the plantation of Pollard & Co. Ten thousand melons were carried northward by the express companies.

MR. PUGH, a photographer of Macon, says the taking of pictures at night is not a new thing. He claims to have successfully taken pictures of the night flowering creeping cereus four years ago. The flower blooms only in the night, and he took a fine negative of a handsome specimen in the short space of twenty second's exposure of the plate.

THE Columbus Times says "the salary of the state treasurer is entirely too small. It prevents the employment of our best financiers, and that office should be held only by men whose financial skill is well determined. The idea that a competent man should give a bond of $200,000 in order to do the duties and assume the responsibilities of the state treasurer for the paltry salary of $1,000 is absurd. Let the treasurer's salary be doubled."

THE attendance in the public schools of Columbus during the past year was 1,153—620 whites, and 533 colored, an increase over the preceding year of 61. The cost of the schools was $9,684—for the white schools $8,029, and for the colored $1,655. Average cost per scholar $8 39. The committee of the council lately in charge of the schools strongly recommended them to their successors in office, because they give the children of the city a good education at a very small cost.

HON. W. D. ANDERSON, long an efficient representative in the legislature from Cobb county, has tendered his resignation of that position. He is induced to resign because he has given up a lucrative law practice and bright political prospects to become a minister of the gospel. At the last session of the north Georgia Methodist Conference he was admitted on trial and assigned to the church at Eatonton. The Conference may well congratulate themselves upon the accession of one so earnest and so energetic to the ranks of their ministry.

The Chattanooga Times objects to the reports of southern stock markets. We give its objections the benefit of a full presentation:

They have a way of reporting the condition of the stock markets in some of the cities south of us, and especially in Atlanta, so as to favor local speculators and middle-men at the expense of shippers and consumers. We learn through a gentleman in the trade, who is now south, that the condition of the market at Atlanta, as reported in the press of that city, and furnished by one of the prominent dealers there, is not at all correct. There are not so many hogs on the market as stated, and the demand for stock is generally better.

St Louis is troubled over her trade in the southeast, which is endangered by freight discriminations in favor of her enterprising rival on Lake Michigan. We give the present rates from Chicago and from St. Louis:

	From Chicago		From St. Louis.
	Flour.	Loose meats.	Flour,	Loose. meats.
To—	pr bbl.	pr 100 lbs.	pr bbl	pr 100 lbs.
Atlanta..	$1 17	59	$1 16	50
Augusta..	1 28	66	1 20	50
Savannah.	1 66	53	1 90	45

West Point	1 48	83	1 30	84
Eufaula..	1 48	89	1 30	84
Selma....	1 19	70	1 00	65

St. Louis claims that these rates were arranged to take trade from that city; no matter whether the railroads lose or gain. It is a big fight, and we are among the spectators.

SOMETHING FOR BONUS

What Interested Parties Say About the Mills Matter.

The following cards will fully explain themselves:

FROM MR. L. C. JONES.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—I notice Mr. Mills' reply to your account of him as secretary of the Georgia senate in yesterday's paper. I presume that an answer is expested from me.

Mr. Mills called upon me last Saturday, and asked me if I was your informant as to a statement in that day's paper. I told him I was and that it was substantially true, but that it was due to him for me to say that I did not state to the reporter that he had demanded the money direct from me, but that I was absent at the adjournment of the senate in 1870, and when I received my pay it was about $112 00 short. I told that he (Mills) had that amount of mine. I called upon him and asked him for the money. He took the money from his pocket, and counted it out to me, saying that he would make a friend of mine (whose name will be found at the bottom of this card) pay him the money back, as he, my friend, had agreed for me that he (Mills) should have the money. I handed the money back to him, saying that under the circumstances I could not receive it. He told me that he would talk the matter over to this friend of mine. He never came back, nor was the matter ever mentioned again by us till last Saturday, when he spoke something about a receipt being made to him by the clerks. I certainly knew nothing of that; I know that I am minus the $112, and that what I have stated above is true of my own knowledge, and I will advise Mr. Mills to be careful in case he cannot successfully explain the above transaction, how he uses his notice. The friend referred to in the above will make his statement and attach hereto. He was also one of the clerks at this same time.

Respectfully,
L. C. JONES.

FROM M. H. M'WHORTER, ESQ.

I know the above is true so far as reference is made to me, and I also know that Mills called on me once or twice and told me that Jones was kicking up a fuss about his money and objected to him keeping it—and I know Mills came to me before this transaction and said he thought the clerks ought to pay him extra as he had performed extra services that they should have done. This, I know of my own knowledge, and he stated to Mills last Saturday. I also advised him to use his duties carefully.

Respectfully,
M. H. M'WHORTER.

LETTER VII.

TWELVE DAY'S ON HARD TACK—DIRECTLY EAST—STRIKING FOR TRADER'S HILL—ROUGH EXPERIENCES—A LARGE PRAIRIE—LITTLE CYPRUS ISLAND—IN SIGHT OF HIGH LAND—YELLING FOR JOY—BOATING FOR MILES—BLACK JACK ISLAND—A HERD OF WILD CATTLE—THE YELL OF A PANTHER—HONEY ISLAND—INTO CAMP—A LITTLE SENTIMENT—A TRIP OF NEARLY TWO WEEKS—SEVERE PRIVATIONS.

BILLY'S ISLAND, Nov. 28, 1875.

After an absence of twelve days I am at the main encampment again; after twelve days of hardships, perils and privations, I am once more upon terra firma and I mean the term in its most literal sense—where I can sit down upon a camp stool and eat as much as my appetite calls for before the next morsel comes. To appreciate how happy I feel, the reader will have to go through the same "rub" of twelve days with what "hard tack" and bacon he can carry on his back, besides a blanket, shot gun, usual ammunition, and one end of a surveyor's chain in his hand, responding "stuck" to the cry of "stick" from the rear end of the chain gang. Alas, it was too often stuck in a double sense. Kind men were frequently so completely stuck in the mud that almost vain were the efforts to to assist each other out. For once in my life I believe I am a happy man, and feel that all that I have gone through with in the last twelve days is not more than a fair price for the boon I now enjoy—dry ground, rest and a plenty to eat, and I am not a glutton either, or very lazy. My companions, Dr. Little, Prof. Locke, Mr. Hyde and the axmen will bear testimony to the trials of the race and the appreciation of the goal.

WITHOUT FEAR OF STARVING

But to the facts that may interest the reader more. We on Monday the 15th of November, with four negroes with axes and bush hooks, and furnished round with about four days rations, reckoning nine "hard tack" and a half pound of bacon a day's rations. We directed our course due east for Trader's hill on the St. Mary's river and no sooner had we entered the swamp than we struck a very dense growth of hemlock, (exceedingly well named) and for two days and a half we struggled hard and made only three miles. The morning after the first night we were so near Camp Lee that we could destinctly hear Lee's dogs bark. The morning of the third day I returned to camp with one of the negroes and replenished our commissary with as much as we could carry, it now becoming evident that we would never reach the opposite shore with what supplies we had. Fortunately, during the fourth day, we came to an open cypress swamp, and after making good time about a mile or so, loomed up in front of us. This was a very agreeable change, for in crossing it we made three and three-quarter miles in one day. This prairie, so called, or savanna, stretched for miles north and south of us, and was covered about twelve or fifteen inches in water, and under the water was a soft muck into which we would bog from six to twelve inches. This was very trying on the muscles of the legs, but we preferred it, as I before stated, to the thick bushes.

A LARGE PRAIRIE

After making good speed this day, we camped upon in the marsh, where we succeeded in getting a dry resting place after an hour's work of cutting bushes, gathering moss and peeling cypress bark. On this elevation were numbers of wild grape vines, and by general consent we called it "Vine Island."

The next morning, the fifth day, we set out early, and by hard work, pulling first through bushes and then through boggy marshes, we made about two miles and a half and then camped for the night on a beautiful and romantic little isle of cypress and hemleaf, lined with moss and surrounded by a marsh quite waist deep in mud and water. We had to cut our way into the center of it, and snugly couched in this little haven of rest (for us) was a grim bear who scampered out at our approach.

Next morning, after a continuation of our tramp for something over a mile, we came to the hard ground of Charlton county, about six miles west of Trader's Hill. When high land was first seen there was among the negroes, their yells of enthusiastic joy made the pine forest ring around us. The distance across was twelve miles.

This was Saturday, and after visiting Traders Hill and examining the St. Mary's, we collected our forces, repacked our commissary and on Monday morning following, left Barber's corn houses, (about four or five miles south of the point we came out at) in Mr. Chesser's boats, and on Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock we landed on a distance of twelve or fifteen miles, after boating it over a winding course of lakes, prairies covered with water, and marshes. On this route we saw thousands of ducks, a few wild geese and other water fowl. A few of these we added to our store of supplies.

Black Jack island was found to be something over six miles in length and about a mile wide. On it were hundreds of deer, bear, a few wolves, a herd of and a few panthers. Mr. Hyde was startled by the unearthly yell of one of these ferocious creatures while wandering off to himself at one time. We had but a short while to spend on this magnificent gaming ground, because we had but three days' rations to carry us back to Billy's island, which we estimated was twelve miles from the west end of this.

Wednesday morning, the 24th of November, we plunged

AGAIN INTO THE SWAMP,

taking a due north course, and after two days and a half of great fatigue and more anxiety, through the thickest hemleaf and oamboo, and the most boggy marshes we had encountered, we struck Honey Island, distance six miles. Our great anxiety was because there was great uncertainty as to the correctness of our course, as it was estimated upon uncertain data, and so also as to distance. Honey Island we knew was south of our objective point, and our main hope was to reach this before our supplies gave out. This hope we realized about mid day Friday. Frantic were the yells of the entire party when Uncle Ben recognized the dry sod ahead, and called out at the top of his voice

"HONEY ISLAND, BOY'S!

We're safe now!" We came out within fifty yards of the spot where I previously had an exciting adventure with a bear.

From this point to Camp Lee it was six miles, with a half-mile of swamp. We set out with a light heart and with a vim feeling that our project was a success inasmuch as we had accomplished all we had undertaken, and at no time did one of the party become so disheartened as to propose an abandonment of the trip and a return to camps—no, I never fell in with a more enduring and plucky set of gentlemen in my life. The five gentlemen who made these routes through the great Okefenokee swamp have been knitted together by common hardships, and a sympathy of feelings exist which time will never break asunder.

FOR CAMPS,

We arrived at camps just after dark, and were greeted with a burst of "the old rebel yell" by white and black.

Hundreds of interesting incidents occurred in the trip which I will write up in full in due time. C. R. P.

—The Gazette, of Alexandria, Va., a very trustworthy journal, relates this: "A lady residing on Prince street in this city received last week, from a gentleman in St. Louis, a check for a considerable sum of money, accompanied with a letter informing her that some property he had lately bought from her had increased so much in value that he thought he had not paid enough for it, and that the check would make up the deficiency. The lady returned the check, with a letter stating that as he had bought the property at her own price she could not consent to receive any more for it than he had a first paid."

Spain is on trial, and the limits of her power to restore order will be the limits of her rights.

The Speaker.

The representative from the third Indiana district, who has just been nominated as the democratic candidate for speaker of the forty-fourth congress, is a native of Pennsylvania, having been born near Titusville, Crawford county, in 1827. The foundation of his education was laid in the common schools of Crawford county, but he subsequently studied at several academies, in the meantime teaching school and improving his mind by a course of steady and profitable reading. Having taken up his residence in Kentucky, Mr. Kerr studied law in the university of Louisville, where he graduated with marked honors. After a short residence in Kentucky he removed to New Albany, Indiana. Here his talents and ability soon brought him into notice. In 1856, he was elected to the legislature of Indiana for two years. In this position he enhanced his reputation and popularity both by votes and speeches. His judgment was sound, and he had the courage to vote for the right, no matter what influence was brought to bear upon him from interested parties. Besides serving in the legislature, Mr. Kerr also acted at different periods as city attorney, and prosecuting attorney of Floyd county. In 1862, he was chosen reporter of the supreme court of Indiana, and edited with great ability and clearness five volumes of the reports of that body. In 1862, Mr. Kerr mode his appearance on a national platform, having been chosen to the thirty-ninth congress. He was also re-elected in 1866, 1868, 1870, and 1874. In congress the career of Mr. Kerr was true to the principles which he professed. He opposed all illegal schemes for abstracting money from the national treasury, insisted upon public officers being held to a strict account, urged the discontinuance of needless office holders, and recommended bringing the government back to the early rules of honesty and economy. Being an impressive speaker, and at all times fortified with facts, Mr. Kerr commanded the attention of the house whenever he spoke. His record is that of an honest, upright and consistent democrat. Firm in his principles without partizanship, and no suspicion of venality or trickery has ever been attached to him. He has the courage to say no when that is the right word—an admirable qualification for a speaker of the house of representatives at this time. In relation to the personality of Mr. Kerr, it was thus sketched by a late Washington correspondent: "He is tall, thin and spare. His face is thin and angular. His eyes, a bluish gray, glint and glow from under a pair of strong, projecting eyebrows. His nose is long, sharp and quivers when excited, like a wild mare's. The lower part of his face falls away in to a sort of tip-of a beard of a dusty-brown color. His forehead climbs up bleak and bare until the top of the skull is reached; here you find a slight undergrowth of sandy hair that becomes a thick hedge lower about the ears. The complexion of the man is sallow (the bilious climate of Indiana has done that for him), but when animated in debate the rich blood jumps up under his skin until he has as much color as a coy virgin telling the story of her love. Kerr always dresses in a suit of rusty black that flops and clings to him after the fashion of garments once made very wet and since hung up to dry. The rusty color of his clothes and the absence of bright positive tints about his face give Kerr a decidedly rusty appearance, but it is the rust of steel! Strike against him and you will never fail to draw fire and the proper ring." This is Michael C. Kerr, who will preside over the most important session of congress that has been held within the last decade.

—The name of Mlle. Pauline Virginie Dejazet, who died in Paris on Wednesday, belongs to the dramatic history of the present century, almost from its opening to the present time. The thirteenth child of a poor tailor, she made her appearance upon the Parisian stage seventy-three years ago, when but five years of age, and she has been there the greater part of the time since then. Everything considered, she has proved one of the most remarkable characters that have been connected with the modern drama. The vivacity of her youth did not leave her in her old age. Handsome as a girl she was no less so as an old woman, and her voice retained its strength and fulness to a remarkable degree. Her name was among the greatest artists in her line, and her admirers were confined to no single country. France, in the person of Louis Napoleon, acknowledged its indebtedness to her, and in 1868 she became a pensioner of the empire, retiring from the stage at that time. Last year the footlights threw their blaze upon her again, where one of the most magnificent benefits ever witnessed in the gay capital was in her honor, and since then she has played acceptably again before her old admirers.

The Wonder

OF THE

NINETEENTH CENTURY.

ALMOST EVERYBODY KNOWS that an Antidote to Opium has been discovered, and that notwithstanding the scores of antidotes, so-called, that have been thrown on the market, Dr. S. B. Collins, of LaPorte, Indiana, was the real discoverer.

The undisputed date of the Doctor's discovery is July 1868, and for a long time thereafter he was the only man who represented himself as being able to even mitigate the horrors of the terrible disease.

Looked upon at first as at best a desperate experiment, it is to-day conceded to be exactly what it is represented to be, Painless, Permanent and Infallible Remedy for the Opium Habit.

Out of the large number of unsolicited testimonials we select the following:

ALBION, NEW YORK, Jul. 8th, 1875.

Dr. S. B. COLLINS, LaPorte, Ind.:

Dear Sir—Several weeks have elapsed since I took the last dose of your Priceless Antidote to the Opium Habit.

To you and to God I owe my restoration to health and happiness once more, and I know if I had followed your directions more perfectly I should have been well long ago. I felt some nervousness for a night or two, but now I rest sweetly all night.

For twelve years I was a slave to the terrible habit of Morphine Eating, but thank God I am free once more and I shall praise God through all eternity that I ever saw one of your circulars.

THE LITTLE WANDERERS.

A Concert for the Benefit of the Little Ones.

The fact that there are a large number of little children in Atlanta who do not attend Sunday school by reason of their poverty and inability of their parents to properly clothe them, the benevolent in our city of all denominations have been doing all, perhaps in their power to induce these little ones to attend Sunday school and receive religious instruction.

Impressed with the necessity of doing something to aid this cause and stimulate our Sunday schools to increased zeal in bringing in the children to Sunday schools, the pres dent of the state Sunday school convention called a note to Prof. Henry Schoeller, of Dalton Female college, inviting him and Miss Pet Mc utchen, Miss Maggie Lowry, Miss Minnie Rogers, Miss Ada Rogers and Miss Links Leveman to give a concert here about the 20th inst and the net proceeds to be devoted to clothing these little ones. Prof. Henry Schoeller has accepted the invitation.

The president of the State Sunday school convention invites the superintendents of the several evangelical Sunday schools in Atlanta to meet in the office of Walter R. Brown, secretary, on Saturday (to morrow) at 3 o'clock p. m to consult upon the proper arrangements to be made for the concert.

GENTLEMEN will please take notice that at Wallace's hat store, No 80 Whitehall street, John A. Doane's old stand, can be purchased silk hats at cost.

No Tax on Coffee.

At a late meeting of the Grocer's Protective Association, Mr. J. Griffin offered the following resolutions, which were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, We are informed from sources deemed altogether trustworthy by us, that the speculators in the city of New York are endeavoring to have a tax placed on coffee by congress, we, the members of the Grocer's Protective Association of Atlanta, Ga., after due deliberation, feel called upon to express our strong disapprobation of such a course. Therefore be it

Resolved, That the imposition of such a tax as is contemplated by certain parties at the north known as speculators upon the article of coffee, is of no advantage to the country, benefits no one but those grasping speculators and is of positive detriment to the interest of consumers, being an unnecessary burden upon them.

Resolved, That the efforts by these parties to obtain the sanction of congress to these schemes, meets with our heartiest condemnation and opposition.

Resolved, That our representatives in congress be presented with a copy of these resolutions and urged to resist the imposing of such a tax as herein mentioned.

THE FAILURE.

Action of the Chamber of Commerce.

Meeting of Citizens Relative to the Failure.

There was quite a large attendance of merchants and business men at the chamber of commerce yesterday. Vice-President W J Garrett, presided.

Col. J N Dunn introduced the following:

Whereas, There has been a very general desire on the part of the business men of our city, as well as many others of our best citizens, that this chamber take some action in reference to the West, Edwards & Co.'s failure, that would reflect the just sentiment of the people of this city with reference thereto. And,

Whereas, We are authoritatively informed that by the by-laws of this body, said house of West, Edwards & Co., were not members of this body at the time of said failure. Therefore,

Resolved, That this chamber has no jurisdiction in any manner whatever, of the parties concerned, or their business complications.

President Crane said that the secretary, J. J. Toon, was absent, and his books were not obtainable. But Mr. Toon reported that the firm of West, Edwards & Co. had not paid their last dues on the ground that they were no longer members. He doubted whether the chamber could act upon the charges of fraud, and thought no action advisable.

Vice President Stephens said that if the firm were no longer members, we had no right, as members of the Board of Trade, to investigate. We might as merchants and citizens, but not as members of the Board.

Col Dunn could not see any reason for not adopting the resolutions. They would not affect the parties in the least.

Col W M Lowry seconded the motion to adopt the resolutions.

The resolutions were thereupon adopted and the board adjourned.

The gentlemen present then resolved themselves into a citizens' meeting and Jonathan Norcross, Esq., was called to the chair. Upon taking the chair Mr Norcross said that while it was not proper for him to express an opinion, yet it was not improper for him to state that he had heard a great deal about the failure. If some of the transactions they are charged with be true it calls for some public expression on the part of the good people of Atlanta.

On motion, W. G. Whidby was requested to act as secretary.

Dr N. L. Angier addressed the meeting briefly. He said: "These merchants are before the public for judgment. Various rumors are afloat, and they are severely censured. It is not for me to say whether they are guilty or not. It is doubtful whether as citizens we should take action upon rumor. Should we do so it might exhibit a want of discretion on our part, unless you have all the facts before you, you will be working in the dark. The courts and creditors of the firm will thoroughly sift these rumors and develop the facts."

Mr. Norcross was opposed to hasty, inconsiderate and undigested action. Perhaps it might be well to appoint a committee without instructing them to report.

Col J A Stewart agreed with Dr Angier. A committee was unnecessary. If the rumors were as bad as represented the firm deserved censure. But we don't know whether they are true. A legal committee will investigate them.

Col W M Lowry thought non-action the best policy.

On motion of J W Fears the meeting adjourned.

IN COURT.

Two of the Firm of West, Edwards & Co., Imprisoned for Contempt.

Proceedings Before Judge Hopkins Yesterday Afternoon.

The legal proceedings instituted by a number of creditors against West, Edwards & Co., took a very serious turn yesterday afternoon, whereby two members of the firm were sentenced to imprisonment for contempt of court. This sudden change in the status of affairs has produced no little of a sensation, and added a deeper public interest to this unfortunate failure.

The facts which lead to this result, as shown by the papers are as follows:

On Wednesday, as has already been stated in the CONSTITUTION, Messrs. Leard Bros., & Co., in behalf of themselves and fifteen other creditors, filed a bill in equity against West, Edwards & Co, and A H Thompson. Without going into the specific allegations of the bill it is sufficient to say that a prima facie case of fraud on the part of the failing firm was made out. The prayer of the bill was that the court grant a temporary injunction restraining the defendants from transferring or disposing of any of the goods now in their possession, and also that a receiver be appointed to take charge of everything until the final adjudication of the case. His Honor, Judge Hopkins, sanctioned the bill. The injunction was granted as prayed for, and Mr. H. Castleman was appoin ed receiver. The order of the court further required West, Edwards & Co., to all of their books, papers, money and assets.

TURN OVER TO THE RECEIVER

Yesterday morning about 10 o'clock, Mr. Castleman, accompanied by his counsel, Col. Reuben Arnold, succeeded in finding two of the firm, to-wit. Mr A. J. West and Mr. B. W. Briscoe, and made a formal demand upon them for their book and papers. Messrs. Briscoe and West had a consultation upon the matter with their counsel, Judge O. A. Lochrane, and the result of the consultation was that the books and papers were neither produced nor turned over to the receiver.

THE BANRUPTCY MOVE.

It appears from the facts developed in court yesterday afternoon, that the firm had decided to go into voluntary bankruptcy, and that at the very time the demand was made, the books were in the hands of counsel, who were preparing their petition. Very shortly after the demand and during yesterday morning, a petition was filed before Hon Lawson Black, register in bankruptcy, who upon the showing duly adjudged the firm to be bankrupt. This was a shrewd move, and well calculated to foil the efforts of the creditors to accomplish anything through a receiver, as it would give the bankrupt court jurisdiction over all of the assets of the firm as it could get into its possession. The only trouble in the way, as will be seen, was that Judge Lochrane was not quite quick enough.

RULE FOR CONTEMPT.

As soon as he discovered that the books and papers were not forthcoming, the receiver embodied in an affidavit he fact of the demand by him, and the refusal of Messrs A J West and B W Briscoe. This affidavit was exhibited to Judge Hopkins later in the morning, and he promptly issued a rule against Messrs West and Briscoe, requiring them to show cause at three o'clock yesterday afternoon why they should not be attached for contempt for refusing to obey the order of the court. Copies of this rule were duly served by the sheriff, Mr. Edwards the remaining partner was not included in it, for the reason, that as yet no demand has been made upon him for the books.

THE AFTERNOON'S PROCEEDINGS.

News of the threatening contempt proceedings quickly flew far and wide, and long before the matter was taken up the court room was crowded by a large and interested throng of spectators. Among them we noticed a number of the creditors of the firm. The defendants, A. J. West and B. W. Briscoe were also promptly in court, and attended by an imposing array of counsel, as follows: Judge O A Lochrane, Messrs. Peeples & Howell, B H Hill & Son, and A B Cuilberson. The receiver was represented by Capt J T Glenn, Col Reuben Arnold, Messrs D F & W R Hammond, Hillyer & Brother and others. The case was opened by Captain Glenn, who stated the facts attending the demand and the failure of compliance substantially as given above. For answer to the rule the defendants set up:

1st. That they have no control over their assets, books or papers, as they had been placed in the hands of their counsel by Mr H S Edwards, previous to the date of the demand for them.

2. That Mr. Edwards has not been served with the rule.

3. That their books and papers were placed in the hands of counsel as above stated for the purpose of making out their application in bankruptcy, which application has already been made, and they have been adjudged bankrupts by Lawson Black, register.

The defendents also demurred to the legal sufficiency of the rule, upon the ground that it was not specific enough to enable them to answer so as to protect themselves. The above points and exceptions were fully elaborated and brought out in two arguments made in their behalf by Col Peeples and Judge Lochrane. The speeches of both of these gentlemen were as eloquent and forcible as ability could make them, but they were unavailing.

JUDGE HOPKIN'S DECISION.

The argument was concluded about dusk, when Judge Hopkins delivered substantially the following decision:

Last Monday application was made to seize the property of West, Edwards & Co. under a common law attachment, which application after a careful examination of the papers was refused. Since then I have granted some attachments and refused many others All were carefully scrutinized and where a proper case was presented the attachment issued. There has been upon me one unbroken demand for attachments during the whole of the present week. The bill upon which the present proceedings are founded was presented yesterday, it was a out a case of huge swindling against them. It made out a case where the defendant had just come out into the land, gathered in the property of others, and fraudulently disposed of it.

Nothing as yet has been heard from them, and it is to be hoped that when they are heard from a very different light will be thrown upon the case. Upon the case presented, I issued an injunction, appointed a receiver, and among other things required the defendants to turn over to him their books and papers.

In my opinion, when this order was read to West, Edwards and Briscoe, their books were then in the hands of their attorney preparing proceedings for bankruptcy. This court is going to act upon the state of facts which existed at the time the order was given and the demand made. At that time the books were in the hands of counsel. At that time there was no question of jurisdiction at all.

Something has been said about the social position and honesty of intention of the defendants. I do not question but that it is all true, but that cannot be allowed to have any effect upon this court. In this room one of my first judicial acts was to order to jail one of the most respected citizens of this county. I cannot imagine a more painful duty than this. With one of these gentlemen I have been acquainted for years as one of my most respected clients, but to-day he stands before this bar convicted of a grave contempt.

THE ORDER.

His Honor then passed the following order:

It is ordered that the sheriff take the defendants A. J. West and Benjamin W. Briscoe into his custody, and commit them to the common jail of Fulton county and there detain them, without bail or mainprise, until they deliver to M. Castleman, receiver, the commercial books of West, Edwards & Co. December 9th, 1875.

JOHN L. HOPKINS,
Judge Superior Court, Atlanta Circuit.

Judge Lochrane gave notice of an intention to prepare a bill of exceptions to Judge Hopkins' decision, but made no speech.

Court shortly afterwards adjourned leaving Messrs West & Briscoe in the custody of the officers.

There is talk of writs of habeas corpus, and various other devices for their relief. It is about certain something will be done to-day, but whether it will be the production of the books and papers, or something else, we cannot yet tell.

THE GRANGERS.

Second Day's Proceedings of the State Grange.

An Interesting and Harmonious Session.

The State Grange continued its sessions all day yesterday and with little intermission up to 12 p m. As a body, it is composed of men of intelligence, who are earnest in prosecution of business measures that will tell on the prosperity of the state and greatly reduce still the prices of all manufactured articles, implements and fertilizers.

Gen. W. Phillips offered the following:

Resolved, That the true object of this organization is taught in the ritual of the improvement of the farm, the increase of home products, that the farm be made self-sustaining, that the farm be made perfect in all its parts, a grange in the true acceptation of the term, presided over by a husbandman aided by a matron devoted to her calling, and educating the youth of the state that labor is not only honorable, but necessary to the happiness and prosperity of the individual and welfare of the state.

Resolved, That the object of the order of Patrons of Husbandry, are not to trammel or derange commerce or to hamper or interfere in any way with the mechanic arts, but in every way possible to protect and aid the same, nevertheless we assert that it is altogether legitimate to so arrange, if possible, to lessen the burden of taxation in the way of commissions, &c., on commodities while in transitu between producers and consumers.

The question being now before the house, Gen W. Phillips supported his resolutions, taking the position that Patrons had been misled by the promise of benefits which had not been realized. The great leading idea of the

of our state has been overlooked, and the attention of farmers directed too much to trade, too much to the purchase of supplies instead of raising them at home. If farmers are to be converted into traders, instead of producers, by the order of Patrons of Husbandry, had misrepresented the objects of the order. He conceived that the great was to make our agriculture self-sustaining and independent. The reason that agriculture in Georgia is languishing to-day is that we have not made.

OBJECT OF THE GRANGE

EACH FARM A GRANGE

in the true sense of that word. Independence at home must precede the advantages of distant trade. When farmers make their farms self sustaining, then they will be in a condition to avail themselves of the advantages of home and foreign trade.

Rev. A I Leet desired to know why it was that the farmers were not self-sustaining. North Georgia the farm had been made self supporting without cotton, and without the purchase of fertilizers. The only way to make Georgia farms self sustaining was to raise supplies and save home manures. In north Georgia they had plenty of grain and consequently plenty of meat.

COTTON IS NOT KING

up there. Grain is king. On the farm that is made self supporting, the patron is king and the matron queen.

Hon. L F Livingstone said the grange does not propose to interfere with the rights of others, but to protect ourselves. He contended that the farmers of Georgia are now than when the order was organized. We can not rally in one, two or three years from such depression, neither can we exclude cotton from our farms at once. He did not favor interference with trade or the mechanic arts. It was only in such an emergency as we are now compelled to that we must protect ourselves. We can not produce all we use, especially in luxuries for the ladies. He was opposed to having both the products that the farmer purchases and sells priced by the merchants.

Gen. Phillips said that north Georgia could produce everything. Farmers in Cobb county were wearing clothes manufactured in Cobb county of wool grown in Cobb There was plenty of corn, wheat and oats made in the county. One man offered to sell 1200 bushels of wheat at 75 cents per bushel payable December 25th, 1876. He thought the Patrons of Husbandry were not sufficiently stimulating the production of these articles. If the farmer will raise what he needs at home he will be in a position and wait until the purchasers come to his terms, and when he goes to buy he can go with the cash in his pocket to buy at the very lowest prices.

He offered the resolutions in no spirit of enmity to any, but with the hope that the grange would wield its influence to bring the farmers back to a concentrated effort to build up home industries.

Hon. J. B. Jones said the prostration of farmers was not due to the grange, but would have been greater without it. The slavish devotion to the production of cotton, at the expense of supplies, is the source of all our troubles. The grange has been instrumental in inducing our people to sow an and corn. He regarded the educational and social features of the order as of great importance.

The resolutions were adopted.

L. F. Livingston was re-elected a member of the executive committee, his term of office having expired.

The members all endorsed the "Georgia Grange" with enthusiasm and unanimity as worthy of the support of every patron and farmer in the land, so high was the praise.

The grange adjourned until 9 a. m to-day.

THE LAST SENSATION.

How the Affairs of West, Edwards & Co. Now Stand.

The Creditors Struggling to Recover Their Shekels.

Supposed Bearings of the Later Phases of the Situation.

The incidents and swift recurring events connected with the recent failure of West, Edwards & Co. still occupy the largest share of public attention and comment. A thousand ugly rumors are extant upon the subject and column after column of this paper might be filled with the reputed incidents attendant upon the failure. It is just to say, however, that a majority of these stories stand minus the important element of authority, and our reporter has generally failed to find those who repeat the alleged circumstances willing to be reported as doing so. Under this state of facts it is neither just to the readers of the CONSTITUTION nor to the persons whose business characters, reputations and honor are involved, to make the fatherless and disputed stories the basis of a sensational report.

THE CREDITORS

of the late firm continue to gather here in force and to ransack the fields of business strategy and law for the purpose of saving to themselves as much as possible from the wreck. These creditors are generally represented by able counsel. Other creditors are now en route to Atlanta, while others are telegraphing and forwarding the proper powers to attorneys here who will act for them.

THE LEGAL PROCEEDINGS

had in the matter on yesterday are fully set forth in the article which appears in another column and headed "In Court." It may be possible that further proceedings will take place to-day.

THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

is reported to have taken no action yesterday of the kind promised by current rumor of the preceding day. The reason of this non-action is that Messrs. West, Edwards & Co., are not members of the body. After the adjournment of the chamber session an informal meeting of citizens was held, but its proceedings were unimportant, and it adjourned without any definite action.

SOMEWHAT DEMORALIZED.

From the patent evidences and spoken expressions of last night, it would seem that the turn given the matter by the proceedings in bankruptcy and by the action of Judge Hopkins in imprisoning Messrs. West and Briscoe, has somewhat demoralized the creditors, or a considerable portion of them, so to not appear to see their way clear to further action at present unless it be to put their claims in proof and then await future developments.

PUTTING ON THE SCREWS.

It is claimed that some of those who had announced their intention to "put the screws to the members of the firm" have become cowed and are now expressing a readiness to enter into an arrangement for a general amicable compromise upon the best terms to be had. Heretofore the threatening attitude has been assumed for the purpose, it is claimed, of forcing West, Edwards & Co. to disgorge and so spend profusion of thanks which is unlooked for. Therefore it will not attempt to pay with empty words, a debt which we can never cancel; but I hope that an opportunity may soon present itself which will enable us to show them how warmly we appreciate their zeal in the cause of the library.

To Mr. Markham and Mr. Owens we are specially indebted for the use of the commodious and elegant new hotel, so conveniently located and so admirably adapted to our purpose; and to all those who by their services, their contributions or patronage, assisted us, we acknowledge our obligations, and offer our thanks.

THE REAL GIPSY.

Oh! I'm a merry Gipsy lad! From the country round I'm known;
My uncle is a Chilcott, my mother is a Lee,
But I'm the best of all of 'em, and real Rommany.
A real Rommany
From head to toot I be,
Who-op! look into my peepers if a' Gipsy you would see!

I go to fairs and races, there I'm always to be found;
One day across the country, then back up'n the ground;
One day I'm dressed up swelly, like the gentlemen, of course,
Then next I come the beggar, a holdin' of her horse.

"Just a threepence, sir. All right!
For I held him jolly tight"
Who-op! I'm the boy as as knows the way to run a horse—by night!

When a cuttin' of my skewers, so peaceable I am,
You'd say: "That Petulengro is the pattern of a lamb!"
But I'm handy with my mau'les, as I many a time have showed,
An' can do so for any traveler as goes up the road.

Oh! a fighting I'm at home,
Quick to dodge an' quick to come;
For at hittin' or at shyin' I'm an out-an'-outer Rom!

How are you, my sweet lady? how are you, my lord? I say;
My wife'll take your money when she comes along this way.
You'll want to give her something—just to keep away the cold—
So I'll step round the corner while your fortune's bein' told.

Then there'll be a patterin',
An' an awful chatterl..';
So I b'l l you all good evenin' till I come th's way again.

SAVANNAH.

—The Hebrews are to erect a temple on Monterey square. The building will be one hundred and forty feet long by forty-eight feet wide, with tower one hundred and twenty-five feet high, and slate roof. The style is gothic, of the fourteenth century order, the windows of a peculiar and unique appearance. The aisles will be of uncommon order of excellence, beautifully grained and moulded. The nave will be half grained and arched, with a height of about forty feet. The nave roof will be the second of its kind in the United States—the Catholic church in Huntsville, Alabama, having one somewhat similar; they were both, however, designed by the architect of the present temple. The arc is entirely original in its design, and is pronounced by gentlemen from New York who have inspected the plans as equalling, if not excelling, anything of the kind in the metropolis. It is proposed, we understand, to build it principally of native wood, and will cost, when completed, with sunlight and draperies, etc., about $5,000. The temple will have slight transept breaks, and each transept will have large windows.—News.

—Mr. T. C. Belyeu, of this town, has an egg that stands on one end, and it is an impossibility to make it stand on any other end. It acts precisely like one end was loaded. Nothing has been done to it, Mr. Belyeu declaring that it has not been "tricked." It was found in a hen's nest in its present condition and remains the same.

—Mr. W. T. Persons, a well known citizen of this county, met his death in a rather peculiar way on Thursday night last. He and another gentleman had started to the marriage of Mr. Chapman and Miss Riley, a sister-in-law. They went across the field, both riding horseback. At length a large gully was reached and, in attempting to leap it, the horses fell in. Mr. Persons' horse fell on him and he was injured. He was taken to the residence of Mrs. Riley, and a physician was immediately summoned. He came and ministered to the want of the patient, pronounced his case not dangerous and went home. Nothing more was thought of it until next morning when Mr. Persons was found dead in his bed.—Standard.
